

Commercial radio sucks and has for years! Satellite radio has been my saviour for 2 years now and I can't imagine life without it. XM radio lets me know that there are still intelligent, talented people making music that doesn't appeal solely to 12 year-olds and the LCD of the general public. Don't limit my choices of what decent music there is left to listen to simply because the radio companies can't handle competition and won't change their way of doing things that has been the same since god knows when.
